

Axiomatic Ethics

- The truth may be said. Because nobody knows the truth, everything must be allowed to be said.

This is only for adults.

- Violence is a kind of anxiety.
- Power per se is pointless. It must be used arbitrarily.
- Ignorance protects against punishment. Because nobody knows everything, he cannot be punished, if he does not know something.